

Chairman will call the oldest delegate and then the youngest delegate, and after that we will call each delegate in alphabetical order.

THE PRESIDENT: The Reading Clerk will now call the remaining delegates in alphabetical order.

Consideration was given to calling the names in reverse alphabetical order, but it was abandoned because the quality of the paper on which the constitution is printed is such that although it has been drying for some hours, it is not thoroughly dry, and we are afraid of smearing.

The delegates will please, as they leave their chairs, go to the back of the chamber so you can walk forward as your name is called.

The Clerk will call the roll of delegates.
